NBA odds explained The point spread, moneyline, and Over/Under are the three most common ways to bet on the NBA.

The point spread favorite is indicated by the minus (-) before the spread and must win by more than that amount of points to win the spread bet.

Check out today's NBA spreads and compare them across the top sportsbooks in the industry by selecting the spread button above the odds.

The moneyline favorite will have a minus (-) before the odds while the underdog will be indicated by a plus (+).

Futures odds often open before the start of the schedule and bets are accepted until the end of the season, constantly changing during that span based on results, injuries, and betting action.
