, and NCAA consensus picks are a useful handicapping tool for college football bettors who are looking to make money at the sportsbook.

What Are College Football Consensus Picks?

Check this out:

Here, we see that 58% of bets are on Army, leaving 42% on Navy.

One way bettors try to use this information to their advantage is by fading the public.

The truth, though, is that fading the public doesn't always work.

Sometimes the public is right, sometimes they aren't.

If it's a prime-time game or a game with a popular team, it's more like ly to be +EV (positive expected value) to fade the public.
