How did this happen?

When pollsters with UC Berkeley's Institute for Governmental Studies asked likely voters in February if they'd support a constitutional amendment to legalize sports betting, 45% said they were inclined to vote yes, while 33% said they were inclined to vote no.

Californians were subjected to a barrage of ads, some of which made confusing claims or didn't mention sports betting at all.

That was reflected in how tribes spent their advertising dollars, said Jacob Mejia, vice president of public affairs for the Pechanga Band of Indians, one of the tribes that supported the in-person measure and opposed the online proposition.

"The reality is, we didn't undertake any meaningful advertising for (the) Tribal Gaming

"It wasn't just 'let's stop this thing,' it was 'let's stomp this thing into the ground,' he said.

In the meantime, companies could focus on other states where they might be able to launch online casino poker, which is more profitable than sports betting, he said.

That means that most regulation happens at the state level.

Many states don't explicitly outlaw this practice, making Bitcoin betting ef fectively legal.

Other states do have laws prohibiting individuals from placing wagers with unlic ensed sportsbooks, but enforcement of these laws for offshore crypto sports bett ing is extremely rare.
