The overwhelming majority of casino baccarat games in the United States, United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, and Macau are "punto banco" baccarat and they may be seen labeled simply as "Baccarat".

The player (punto) and banker (banco) are simply designations for the two hands dealt out in each coup, two outcomes which the bettor can back; the player hand has no particular association with the gambler, nor the banker hand with the house.

Punto banco is dealt from a shoe containing 6 or 8 decks of cards shuffled together; a cut-card is placed in front of the seventh from the last card, and the drawing of the cut-card indicates the last coup of the shoe.

For each coup, two cards are dealt face up to each hand, starting from "player" and alternating between the hands.

If neither hand has eight or nine, the drawing rules are applied to determine whether the player should receive a third card.

The coup is then finished, the outcome is announced, and winning bets are paid out.

If the banker's total is 5, then the banker draws a third card if the player's third card was 4, 5, 6, or 7.

If the banker's total is 6, then the banker draws a third card if the player's third card was a 6 or 7.
