Hawaii is one of two states (Utah being the other) that strictly prohibits gambling, including daily fantasy sports, racetracks and all types of sports betting.

While recent federal legislation has opened the door for Hawaii to legalize sports betting in the state, the current outlook isn't great.

In earlier times, when the Hawaii islands were first discovered in the late 18th century, gambling was popular amongst the residents and played yearly at a festival called Makahiki.

First, they discussed opening a land-based casino in Waikiki.

PASPA had been in place since 1992 and banned sports gambling in all states with the main exception of Nevada.

As of now, there are no sports you can bet on legally online within the state of Hawaii.

However, in the event that online sports betting becomes legal, Hawaiians can o
